RE: Freedom of Information Act Request #23-F-00234: Any records, including internal emails and memos, sent or received by employees of CPSC between January 8, 2023 and January 12, 2023 regarding "gas stoves." Also include emails discussing bans related to "gas stoves" and CPSC Commissioner Richard Trumka Jr.'s comments on the possibility of a ban to Bloomberg News on January 9, 2023.

Dear Mr. Thalen:

Thank you for your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request seeking records from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). This is an initial, interim response. Enclosed are emails transcribing messages sent from the public to CPSC's hotline that are responsive to your request, totaling 448 pages.

Portions of the enclosed records are being withheld pursuant to FOIA Exemption 6, 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(6). These submissions from members of the public may contain vulgar and offensive language that CPSC does not condone. CPSC considered the foreseeable harm standard when reviewing these records and applying FOIA exemptions.

Exemption 6. FOIA Exemption 6 permits withholding personnel and medical files and similar files, the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Absent authorizations to disclose the records or personally identifying information from the persons identified in the records or their representatives, such information falls within the protection of this FOIA exemption to disclosure and is being withheld accordingly.

FOIA Administrative Procedures

Right to appeal. According to the CPSC's regulations implementing the FOIA at 16 C.F.R. § 1015.7, a partial denial of access to records may be appealed. If you are not satisfied with the response to this request, you may administratively appeal in writing, addressed to FOIA APPEAL, Office of the General Counsel, ATTN: Division of Information Access, U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, 4330 East West Highway, Room 820 Bethesda, MD 20814-4408.

Your appeal must be postmarked or electronically transmitted (cpscfoiarequests@cpsc.gov) within 90 days of the date of the response to your request. You may also fax your appeal to 301-504-0127. You may contact us Monday – Friday from 8:00AM – 4:30PM EST, by telephone at 1-800-638-2772, by fax to 301-504-0127, or by e-mail addressed to cpsc-foia@cpsc.gov.

Before filing a formal appeal with the CPSC, you may contact me or CPSC's other FOIA Public Liaison, Korinne Super (ksuper@cpsc.gov), via email or at 1-800-638-2772, for any further assistance, or to discuss any aspect of your request. Assistance may include guidance on possible reformulation of your request or an alternative time frame for processing the request.

Right to Mediation. Additionally, you may contact the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) at the National Archives and Records Administration to inquire about the FOIA mediation services they offer. The contact information for OGIS is as follows: Office of Government Information Services, National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road-OGIS, College Park, MD 20740-6001; e-mail at ogis@nara.gov; telephone at 202-741-5770; toll free at 1-877-684-6448; or facsimile to 202-741-5769.

Fees. We are not charging you fees in this instance to cover the costs to the CPSC in processing this request, performing the file searches and preparing the information.

Sincerely,

ROBERT

I wanna tell anyone who will listen

The codes need to be updated

Gas appliances were never allowed back in the 60s.and before without a fan or exhaust to outdoor air.se.idiot.decided gas was ok inside .well gas is what killed many people.

When I was little my apartment building wreaked of gas.it causes anxiety,vein problems , hypoxemia and cancer I have facts...

The ventilation in many apartment buildings the ventilation doesn't pull enough to hold a piece of toilet paper which means it ain't pulling so that code needs a fixin.

Has stoves are a hazard

My building smells like gas

My friend who had gas smells for twenty years has 8 or so people in building got different cancers Why o had my gas leak I was having stroke and als symptoms and a regular md said I was fine.i went to Dr (b)(6) in Manhattan and she saved my life .she put me on o2 therapy for two years so please consider no gas indoors and please get after gas companies to put gas leak detector in any he.or business where they have gas.

I just read an article about you considering banning gas stoves. I want to express I do NOT support this ban. I have had a gas stove since my childhood and have suffered no ill effects. I have always used a gas stove and cannot tolerate using an electric range. Do not ban them!!!!

Subject: Do not ban gas stoves

To Whom It May Concern:

The average American does not have any desire for you to ban our gas stoves. This is wild government overreach and is absolutely unacceptable. You are paid with our tax dollars to serve us, not to rule us. I am not a child whose toy is to be taken away. Whether or not I use gas in my home is none of your business. I can decide risk for myself. This is clearly a coordinated effort to force us all to buy electric where intentionally positioned people will profit—and is transparently a way to shift wealth at scale.

We do not want your interference.

I have protected rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. I judge a well made gas stove as safe for my use. I exercise my liberty to pursue cooking IN MY OWN HOME in a way that makes me happy. That should be the end of it.

This is outrageous and must stop.

Anonymous Comment regarding banning of gas stoves;

1. There are chemical put in natural gas to enable detection
2. Silliest decision ever made
3. Get back to real business
4. Life is actually a hazardous business

Gas Stoves;

You people must be out of your minds, to consider banning the use of gas stoves. Apparently, you've never had the power go out for 3-4 days. A gas stove provides the means to feed oneself and possibly provide a little warmth in the kitchen. In my 77 years I've seen the government try some stupid, boneheaded ideas, but this one might take the cake, or in other words first prize. Yep, the blue ribbon.

Your concern for gas cooking stoves is absurd!
This is nothing more than politics. There are hundreds of issues more dangerous to public and health, than gas cooking: open border, electric battery disposal, unbridled drugs, crime and terrorist attacks on energy and grid. Before I give up any more fossil energy, We will fire you and cut your agency!

I was reading about the potential of getting rid of gas stoves. I am totally against this due to more than a stove leading to asthma. There are many contributors to Asthma. Secondly, living in Buffalo NY where the storms are horrific and we regularly lose electric power for days at a time. That gas stove has saved people from freezing to death. Kerosene and propane are horrific smells which I'm not able to handle. Also, not everyone can afford or be able to operate generators. Please reconsider gas stove elimination. Thank you!

Head of CPSC,

I'm really glad you recalled your stupid UNSCIENTIFIC statements about gas stoves. There was literally NOTHING scientific about it. All you did was once again, use the DemonRat plan to bring fear to people who didn't know the difference so that you could influence them, change them, bring fear into their lives. You are one of the many who are destroying this Nation. What you have done is a shame. But what do you know of shame?

Dear Commissioner,

Regarding the recent articles & announcement of a potential ban on gas ranges, please consider the massive impact that such a ban would have on the restaurant industry, as well as ALL families who enjoy cooking with gas. No electric appliance (including induction) compares to gas in terms of efficiency, and other capabilities. Professional chefs will tell you at length how electric ranges fall short in every category, including utility cost.

For low income families, electric ranges will cost 25%-30% more.

For the safety aspect, any product is unsafe in the wrong hands, and natural gas contains its own safeguard - sulfur dioxide.

What's next on the list of things to ban? Plumbing? Well, it's potentially destructive & dangerous, especially once mold propagates.

I believe this attempt at saving citizens from ourselves is misguided, and likely due to a knee-jerk reaction to cave in to green, identity politics.

The government should not make these decisions in a vacuum.

Former restaurateur

I just read about the proposal to ban gas stoves, and I want to add that besides the threat of their causing childhood asthma, they emit particulates into the air which I for one cannot tolerate. I have a lung condition called bronchiectasis and it's very sensitive to pollutants in the air. Electric stoves don't bother me but the gas stove would be deadly.

Is there an organization I can go to to get help removing the gas stove and replacing it with an electric one in my home, because I've had to use a microwave, a toaster oven and a hot plate and it's really cramming up my kitchen. But I'm afraid of the gas. Thank you for any reply

You can kiss my ass if you think banning Natural gas stoves is a good idea!
I have been cooking with gas for over 50 years & i won't stop, because of ill-informed beaucratic idiots. If you prevent gas from coming to my house, I will cook with wood, cardboard boxes, newspapers, magazines & all paper from the federal government, which will add more pollutants in the air than gas ever will!

Please do not proceed with a ban on gas stoves. Gas stoves are the only currently available option for home canning food preservation. Electric stoves can not fulfill this role in their current technology. The so-called canning burners sold for use on electric stoves simply do not hold up to the intense heat created by the large size pots and high temperatures of pressure canning equipment. I have burnt out several of these. There has been a recent up-tick in the number of home food preservationist. Please do not gas stoves for purchase until there is an effective alternative for them.

It is my hope and prayer you will not ban gas stoves. They are so much better to cook on and make it easier. If you're worried about carbon monoxide, open a window. Or use a kitchen vent. I love my gas stove and will be angry if you ban them after decades of use. Let people cook as they please and enjoy good food. Electric sucks.

there is some talk of banning the gas stoves to prevent Asthma in children.

However I believe that proper hood in kitchen will serve to remove most of the pollution.

Gas stoves are are much better than electric ones in convenience. also they are economical. It is better to give information to people and leave it to their choice whether to switch to electric ones or not. Any banning will take away people's right to use the things they like.

thank you

Please tell Richard Trumpka Jr. that I appreciate the work he and your organization are doing. I converted to induction 5 yrs ago because I am energy and Earth conscientious. I cooked with gas stoves almost my entire life, raising my kids, until I made the break for the environment. Natural gas and propane are simply wrong for the environment. Little did I know that they also contribute to respiratory problems.

I have been around gas stoves and gas heat all my life. When my husband and I moved in to care for his mother, I had to use her electric stove. I hated it with a passion! I was very happy when the electronics fouled on it, and I am the very happy owner now of a brand new gas stove. No problems. Please do not do something so rash and thoughtless as to ban gas stoves. Put a warning label on the literature if you must. People should have the right to choose the type of stove or heat they are comfortable with!

I applaud Rich Trumka's statements on gas stoves. Its ironic that we vent furnaces fumes outside and put up CO alarms but stand over a fossil flame.

His statement goes a long way toward accepting the reality that we need to take action.

The US Consumer Product Safety Commission proposed BAN on gas stoves is not based on factual science but is part of the Biden administration's on-going war to ban all fossil fuels.

FACT - I am a senior citizen and my family had a gas range when I was growing up and no one in my family ever developed asthma. My mom was a chef for over 30 years in various Chinese restaurants which used gas for their huge woks and she NEVER developed asthma. She died this past December at age 90.

Living in apartments for seven years, I had to use an electric stove and there was a huge learning curve as the heating elements made it hard to regulate the amount of heat needed and resulted in burned food until I learned to move the pot to a burner not in use. When we were building our first home, my late husband insisted on gas for our Jenn-Air cooktop as the burner element on an electric stove took a LONG time to heat up. He also grew up in a home with a gas range and NO one in his family developed asthma.

In my second home, we were able to change the electric cooktop to a gas one as it was easy to run a gas line in the unfinished basement for $150 - best $150 we ever spent. In all three of the homes I have owned my choice was always gas for cooking as I was able to control the heat easily and it is safer as the burner cools once the flame is turned off. I use a wok when cooking and GAS is the best as I can turn flame high and get quick results.

LOVE my gas cooktop and still don't have asthma and none of my children now adults have asthma.

By the way, ALL restaurants use GAS in their kitchens and PROFESSIONAL CHEFS prefer GAS. If this ban happens, there will be NO restaurants worth going to!!! Also, natural gas does not need to be generated like electricity and is much CHEAPER.

STOP this ridiculous attempt to ban gas for home kitchens, restaurant and institutional kitchens on faulty science and your desire to CONTROL people.

Let WE THE PEOPLE decide on how we want to cook.

NOTE: These submissions from members of the public may contain vulgar and offensive language that CPSC does not condone.

How many of you would be willing to swap your gas range or cooktop for an electric range or cooktop in your home???

Thank you for allowing me to comment.

Re: Gas stove usage - consideration of a ban Hello This is a wonderful idea.

However it does not go far enough.

I am speaking of the gas and oil fired furnaces that are in millions of manufactured homes and are in the living area hallways.

As a person with Mast Cell Activation Disease who had to move into a new manufactured home 5 yrs ago I know first hand how sick those units can make a person.

I know the firebox is supposedly sealed but there is always going to be some sort of leftover burned off substance in the air/vents/etc.

The solution is easy and if you can get past the lobbyists for the manufactured home makers (Lobbyists should be illegal!!), then you just make them put in mini split heat pumps with a/c in every new home being built. Not only better for the environment but for millions of elderly, infirm and babies health.

There is no good reason to have those awful, noisy, smelly, sickening air handlers in the homes anymore. None. The mini splits are cheaper to run overall and should simply be a requirement.

thank you for your time

I've seen the reporting describing a backlash over gas stoves restrictions.

I support a change on this topic. Stricter emissions standards, require mixing H2 into the flow, greater ventilation requirements for buildings with gas stoves are all fair game. I think no matter what happens with the energy transition people will always want to cook with fire, you just won't win any argument if the desired outcome does not allow people this freedom. But I'll support banning the burning of almost anything else sourced from fossil using almost any argument.

Hello,

Concerning your gas stove ban did your research happen to question the type of ventilation the house had? Quite often builders take shortcuts and vent into the attic instead of the exterior ventilation that all kitchens should have. Just turn the vent on before turning the stove on and you're fine.

That was the polite part of the message, but you'll take my gas stove and heating over my dead body. Even if I have to buy an extra stove and store them for when my current one dies. Electric stoves are a nightmare to cook on, especially for proper oriental dishes. Also, Electric bills will go through the roof without gas heating and cooling cutting down the bill.

Because this, I'm sure is only the first of your bills against gas. Then there's the fact you're creating an even worse energy monopoly than currently exists. I'm sure you've been bought out by the electric stove industry since electric stoves require replacement and repair much more frequently than gas.

A gas stove can last 30+ years. My family's last one made it over 40 and didn't require a repair till a couple years before it was retired due lack of part availability. You'll also be damaging the companies that make gas stoves within the US, which could lead to business loss and unemployment for many.

And finally if you pass this bill, I'll spend every day until I die voting down every climate proposal that comes my way. I'm just petty enough to make it my goal for the next 50+ years. You probably don't care and I doubt you've even read this far. You're just a politician with more money than sense who can't enact common sense laws like requiring exterior ventilation. Instead throw out a whole industry. I despise people like you.

I strongly object to your consideration of banning gas stoves from homes due to rising concerns of indoor air pollution. This is absurd. Gas stoves have been used for over 70 years by restaurants and homes. Your data is probably falsified. Kindly reconsider your dreadful decision.

Your proposed gas stove ban is ridiculous and a waste of time. So if this happens, will you be upgrading my homes electric to run a 220 outlet for an electric stove? This would also have to include running a bigger line to upgrade my homes 100amp service as I have no more room in my breaker box.

Very costly proposal, will I expect reimbursement for this expense? Perhaps your agency should pursue a more worthwhile endeavor.

I just a read an article stating the CPSC is considering problems with gas stoves and a possible ban.. N O!!!!!! Tell me something. If a product has been in my house for 40 years and never caused any health issue. WHAT IS THE PROBLEM!! If people are careless YES there is a problem.; BUT.. not with the item... It is with THE PEOPLE!! Gas stoves have been around for a very long time.. If they are so dangerous why aren't there BILLIONS of deaths from it. More people are killed by cars crashes than a stove. Stop wasting government money.. MY MONEY.... and start to tackle something else that is REALLY dangerous.

To the Commissioner, PLEASE DO NOT BAN GAS STOVES!!!

not everyone has kids, were older adults, so why would you ban stoves for everyone. Gas is a clean fuel, if anything ban electric stoves. They use fossil fuels for the electricity they burn. What is going on, you people get in a high office and start banning cars, now you want to ban gas stoves. You ban them and the next presidential election you will be out of a job, and the ban will be over turned. Why not instead, list a warning for households with children. That says keep children away from stove when in use, crack a window. You people, have no right to ban a gas stove. What about those of us who live out away from electricity we must use gas because that is all that is available. You will leave office as the most hated CPSD Commissioner. That will be your legacy Leave our gas stoves alone.

Hey CPSC!

I've already written to you once about the stupid suggestion to get rid of gas stoves, but I forgot something. There were two different Nation's military ships near the NORD Stream pipelines. One Nation was Poland and the other was the United States. Not long after the NORD Stream pipelines blew up. Poland would receive no benefit from blowing up the NORD Stream pipelines, but the United States would receive a benefit. As a result of that purposeful explosion over 115,000 tonnes of methane was released into the atmosphere. If you want to stop this type of greenhouse gas in the future, I suggest you consult with DoJ and the Biden Administration who are nothing but a bunch of lying butt wipes. They scream we must fund climate change and then release over 115,000 tonnes of methane. You are all idiots.

I am writing to strongly urge the CSPC to refrain from unwarranted and incautious over-regulation of gas stoves. As a biological scientist I have seen the studies and find that the data does not support a ban of these devices and over-zealous regulation will precipitate economic problems in our service industry and for homeowners (~40% use gas stoves) throughout the United States. Please do not use your unelected authority to further sow chaos in our society. Thank you.

Thank you. I would like to register my opposition to any policy that bans the use of gas appliances. The evidence for the percentage of asthma caused by these appliances is not firm or prospective. Electrical appliances require the use of more non-renewable energy at this time. By the time the gas appliances are able to be replaced by renewable energy, carbon scrubbing technology will have eliminated the risk. Electrical appliances cannot replace gas appliances at this time for the quality of cuisine.

Gas stoves cook better and more efficiently than electric ones and don't use electricity which is generated by fossil fuels. Keep your hands out of my kitchen. People have been cooking with gas and LP for a long time and I cannot believe that asthma in children has been that significant a problem from this.

Instead of working towards banning millions of people cooking source, why not simply mandate over head fans that expell exhaust through an external vent like a clothing dryer. Too easy?

I read recently that the head of your agency said they were not going to effect existing gas stoves but only new product in a few years. I wanted to express my opinion that you should do work that matters and not chase ghosts.

Leave gas stoves alone. Do not pass any rule or regulation of any kind on gas stoves. In my opinion, it is none of your business what appliance i choose to buy or use. I am sure you can pay some university somewhere to come up with a report that says whatever you wish. That is the out come is predetermined.

So please quit doing politically correct stuff and do real work and leave people alone with meaningless actions. Thanks for listening to my opinion.

Don't even think about banning my gas appliances. When the electricity goes out I can cook and when emergencies hit, heat my home. Diversity of energy sources is smart and necessary as you can never rely on electrical service. I have a home generator that runs on natural gas because of the failures of electrical service when the wind blows or the trees fall on the power lines.

BTW what is the number 1 fuel that generates electricity? Answer; Natural Gas!

Considering banning gas stoves is not up to you. It is not up to a committee to decide what people can afford. When you start telling people how to spend their very little money that becomes a problem. How about a warning label or ad campaign about proper ventilation? Parents smoking around their kids is far worse, yet no ban? The air in schools and cities are far worse for developing lungs. Then what will it be replaced with? Electric? That will tax an already over worked, out of date Electric grid? We need to stop thinking about the here and now and start thinking about 50, 100, 1000 years in the future. This is just plain overreach.

I just wanted to say in response to improving gas stoves, that older homes used to have rather large diameter vents going outside. Now these vents are no longer used. I am sure engineers of old went through all that trouble for a reason.

Also I want to add it isn't hard for most people to understand the recent comments are about improving gas stove emissions and public safety, not taking the stoves away.

I saw the report regarding banning gas stoves. I will be livid if you try to eliminate my gas stove. I cook all the time and there is a huge difference in cooking with gas than electric. The inability to control the flame is huge. I will fight this tool and nail.

My message is, the controversy about gas stoves is a ploy to remove natural gas and oil from the consumer market under the guise of safety issues, aka; climate change, which really is the relentless pursuit to control free American citizens. My grandparents and parents cooked on gas stoves and lived into their nineties. Their longevity was hard work, growing their food, exercise, religion and family.
Let California do it and see how many more people leave the state.

To whomever has come up with the idea of banning natural gas stoves; Have you lost your ever loving minds??? Who do you think you are to determine how citizens or businesses cook their food??? This idea is so dangerous I don't know whether to call it insane or criminal. People are struggling enough in society right now without agencies like yours pushing them over the emotional cliff with an idea that's so evil, the people that are trying to push this should be fired and walked out the door tomorrow morning! I demand an answer from the lunatic who thinks this is a good idea. (b)(6)

What on earth are you thinking about when you are considering getting rid of gas stoves. I know the underlying principle as you want to get rid of fossil fuels and natural gas. What's next candles. Candles have worse, emissions, than a gas stove. What about wood, stoves and gas fireplaces? Maybe the government should stay out of what consumers are allowed to buy. There isn't one thing in this world that's not hazardous if you treat it the wrong way, and if you have a gas stove, you know how to use it. This is nothing but a bunch of woke ideology that has infiltrated, this woke government.

I am writing You to voice My opposition to the news that the CPSC is considering a ban on gas stoves, I have seen several reports on the issue, and it seems the problem is not with the stoves, it is with the ventilation or exhaust fans, because electric stoves can give off many of the same off gasses while cooking that gas stoves do. please consider this while deciding whether to ban a kitchen appliance, also a couple years ago, a derecho hit My town, we had no electricity for ten days, but I could still cook meals because I had a gas stove, that was priceless to Me.

Please tell the lucky sperm commissioner (aka RIchard "Union Boy" Trumka Jr.) that daddy is no longer with us, the unions have decimated manufacturing in this country, and for him to dictate that new gas stoves are no longer allowed in this country is dumber than a bag of union college diplomas. Try something novel Union Boy, use daddy's money to start a real, for profit business (not union wages to demented Joe and the Democratic entitlement trough), and try running your own company to create lasting economic value.

But Union Boy won't because he is simply another do-nothing bureaucrat whose daddy got him into an Ivy League school (the lowest ranked one) and paid demented Joe to get him a job at the CPSC. Union Boy and his gang of parasites contributing to this country's pathetic decline; whores all the way are you going to ban gas grills too? how about charcoal grills? people might burn themselves. ban gas generators? people die of carbon monoxide. we won't need them during power outages or in natural disasters. better ban electric stoves too because people leave pots and such on burners and burn down houses. new restaurants and food trucks are going to go electric? this sounds like orders from deep state WEF WHO and all the other people wanting to shut down the USA

Hi there, I'm a producer at NewsNation. We're covering the gas stove story today, and I'm reaching out to see if someone from CPSC could join us for a live interview at 630pET to discuss. The interview would be live via zoom with our anchor, Nichole Berlie and only last a few minutes. Let me know your thoughts and looking forward to hearing from you.

Best,

So, now you're going to tell me what appliances I can have in my house? I'm not certain if you've ever studied history, but this feels an awful lot like communism. You will have to pry the gas stove out of my cold, dead hands. Maybe I'll just go back to cooking over a cookstove. We burn wood to heat our outbuilding, so I'm certain I'm also going to hell for doing that. Funny that, when my parents moved into their house, there was an electric stove included. My sister, who was three at the time, burned her hand on the burner. That day, the electric stove was out of the house and no one in my family since has had one. That was my family's consumer choice, because we live in the United States where this is an option. I'm assuming next you'll tell me that my coffee maker is dangerous because it leads to caffeine consumption, and, as we know, caffeine is a drug. Get a clue, get a life, and look at all of the research done on these topics before you make any suggestions as it sounds as though you've discounted every study that shows no more danger using a gas stove than any other type.

I am stunned and angry to hear on the news that you are considering banning natural gas stoves on the basis of some absurd study results indicating that the stove emissions can be harmful to humans. That is preposterous!! My grandmother, my mother, my aunts, cousins, and friends have used gas stoves for generations. At age 79, and after a lifetime of cooking with gas, I am perfectly healthy, as is my family who inhabited my kitchen during all those years. Anyone who enjoys cooking knows that gas is the better option. Don't get caught up in environmental extremism and force consumers to give up a product that the majority prefers! It would be a classic example of government over-reach based on nonsense.

Re: Gas Stoves. Please don't do this! I have used gas stoves and heat my entire life, I am in my 70's, and NO ONE in my family, my mother's family, my grandparents family has ever had a respiratory illness because of them.

There are so many people using these stoves and my ability to purchase a new stove is my right. Also, so many people would need to convert to 220 electrical outlets which would be expensive as well as it is more expensive to use electric appliances. This is taking my right to choose what I purchase and when as well as over reach by my government to control my life.

This is not right!

Require outside vented exhaust fans to go with gas cooking stoves. Require an efficiency rating . Develop a tool to measure exhaust from a burner and require the gas company to check and approve your stove, but don't ban gas stoves, gas fireplaces, gas hot water heaters, gas grills, or gas forced air furnaces or gas hot water boilers, or gas spacer heaters.

I have read about the proposal to bar gas stoves. I love my gas stove, which cooks safely and is cool immediately when the flame is shut. I find electric stoves dangerous. Cooktops remain hot for some time, and food must be removed from the burner immediately, with danger of spilling hot liquids and burns to the cook, not to mention burns to the hands from the still hot flat top. I have used them both and have found the electric to be very dangerous to the cook.

If natural gas does indeed pose a health risk when used as fuel for a kitchen stove, I would suggest the manufacturers of these appliances merely be required to disclose this with marketing and operating manuals. Many people prefer to cook with natural gas stoves. Also, the argument for power loss to cooking if the grid goes down is very true. Do not eliminate the natural gas stove availability to the public. I intend to also inform my Senators of my opinion.

Yesterday, you issued a ludicrous statement that having a gas stove in our homes was an environmental/health hazard. I've read that today, you are walking back your stupidity, however I suspect it will be on Page 26, in size 2 font in the NYTimes. How can you behave so irresponsibly and proclaim such stupidity?

If you are intending to become the next Dr. Fauci, please just stop. This world and our country has plenty of arrogant stupidity already in circulation, we need nor can tolerate any more.

NatGas has been a "cheap", readily available and reliable source of energy for the American People. This govt agency has no business trying to limit / ban how I choose to cook and heat my house.

To Whom It May Concern:

Please do not ban gas stoves, use the time and money to make better air purifiers. I love to cook and cooking with a gas stove is so much better than electric stove. I have no intentions of ever buying an electric stove. I've used an electric stove years ago, and I hated it. The food and taste are much better with gas stoves. I would prefer that the organization hires a bunch of engineers to create an air purifier to remove whatever they think causes asthma, or hire a bunch of medical scientist to fix the person to build up a resistant so they won't get asthma. With the RNA technology available, just identify the gene that is causing the asthma and alter the gene so the person won't get asthma.

If a person is allergic to cats and causes asthma, you wouldn't say let us kill all the cats in the world for the small percentage of people who get asthma from cats. Do not ban gas stoves for the small percentage of people who get asthma from the chemical emitted from gas stoves. Create an air purifier or build up the person immune system so they don't get asthma. Why should everyone be punished for the few it affects?

If they create air purifiers, let us put air purifiers on every car in the world that can purify the air as people drive their cars (duel purpose). Let there be an air purifier attached to every street light in America that runs on solar that can clean the air. Make the cars run on solar, have all the panels be exterior on the car so that the car can power it. Also as the wheel on the car turn let that also create the energy to power the cars. Put solar panels on every government building and street. Create buildings out of material that cleans the air.

Lithium batteries are too dangerous; they have burn down houses and brought down a plane. The fires from lithium batteries have put more dangerous chemicals in the air than gas stoves. Ban lithium batteries from cars and cell phone instead. The car batteries should be made with sodium ion. Sodium ion is much more plentiful than lithium and it does not cause fires.

NOTE: These submissions from members of the public may contain vulgar and offensive language that CPSC does not condone.

I don't want to be driving around in a car with a lithium battery wondering when it will catch on fire. Don't make cars that are made using precious materials that make the cars more expensive (lithium, platinum, etc.), use carbon, or nitrogen or other materials plentiful on Earth. Do not spend tax payer dollars in efforts to ban stoves, use tax payer dollars to develop better products. Why can't a gas stove be built with an air purifier?

Please stop trying to ban things, but create things to make it safer to use.

Thank you,

I see where Mr. Trumka is quoted as saying: "Any option is on the table products that can't be made safe can be banned." Please note that in effect this is claiming unlimited power and authority for an agency that is not even elected, but filled by bureaucrats. It is one more instance of the itching need of bureaucrats to regulate something, anything, just so long as authority can be displayed and expanded. Nuts to you, jerk! Get lost, and find some other sandbox in which to exert your authority. We have a Constitution to limit the authority of government, so GET OUT OF OUR LIVES!!

Please do not ban the sale of natural gas stoves and ovens. Cooking on a flame is much more precise, safe, and makes sense in an area with power failures. Rather start a new safety campaign to bring forward the importance of using an efficient range hood, checking the efficiency of the burners, and carbon monoxide monitoring. electric ranges bring forth their own set of safety hazards including, boil overs (heat doesn't cut off fast enough), hot range top after use, large pots sliding off range if not properly leveled, life of the range - electronics burn out, must be replaced - more in our landfill. Thank you, (b)(6) California

I heard about the possible ban on gas stoves. That is crazy and gone too far. There is a lot of people that have safely used gas stoves for centuries. Cooking on electric is very difficult. I did for a while and never could master it and burned many things because you cannot change the temperature on the burner fast like gas. Also, electric is more dangerous on getting burned. The reasons is crazy and really over reaching your power. I heard that it may cause asthma in kids. Thats nuts. I have asthma and believe me, there is many other things in a house that causes my asthma to act up. Like dirt, dust, dogs, smells from cleaning chemicals, air fresheners, and humidity, allergies, environmental factors, etc. And as for carbon monoxide, i have a detector and never have an issue. I have a vent hood when needed. I think you are taking things too far this time. Big government over reaching your power. It's time to use some common sense. Do not take our stoves away. I never want to cook on electric again.

If you want to ban gas stoves will you be not only buying us new stoves but pay to put the electric in over gas? If you push a ban you better get your CEOs checkbook out. I'm not spending thousands because you want a ban

Funny ban but we're the ones who will have to pay

I'm writing because someone suggested that cooking with an electric stove is safer than cooking with gas. When you turn off an electric stove the heat remains longer. Turn off a gas stove it the heat source is gone. Less fire hazard. As for air quality, vent vent vent Every stove has a vent, use it!

When the power is out from a storm or any other reason, you can still cook on a gas stove. A person would be hungry waiting for the power to come back on if cooking in electric. Heat is more precise cooking with gas. Please reconsider.

Good Morning, I noticed this article on the banning of Gas Stoves in homes.

<https://www.msn.com/en-us/news/us/federal-safety-commissioner-proposes-ban-on-gas-stoves>

Here at American Gas Safety we have developed a safety product we feel would not only benefit residential homes but also commercial kitchens. Our Dual Gas Leak and Carbon Monoxide detector will shut off the fuel supply or simply alert the occupant of gas leaks or CO poisoning. Protecting the life and the building. Our product is called the Mini Merlin - Web link below:

<https://americangassafety.com/product/ags-mini-merlin-commercial-kitchen/>

Would it be possible to point me in the direction of one of your colleagues who would deal with this? Finally the product has been UL tested and certified to meet the US standards.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind Regards

So you want to regulate gas stoves, well how about regulating Outdoor Wood Boilers that have significant health effects on neighbors, children and seniors. Breathing the smoke in the air generated by these monstrosities is ridiculous. Moved to Ohio from California and all these hillbillies know is how to tear down trees and burn them in wood boilers. Regulate or even better, ban them and then talk to us about gas ranges.

Please, pay attention to products that ACTUALLY pose a safety risk to people.

Gas ranges ARE NOT the threat your agency should concern themselves with at the cost of our tax dollars. STOP THE INSANITY!!! Maybe a better place to focus would be recently legalized hard drugs. While it may seem that would be the purview of the DEA, I argue you could interfere there. Since these drugs are now being legalized in more and more places, it would seem they would be 'consumer products' thus falling under your ever-expanding umbrella.

So focus on the excessive deaths being caused by legalized hard drugs, and leave gas stoves (that aren't spontaneously exploding for no apparent reason) alone.

It is NOT necessary to justify the existence of your agency, it won't go anywhere.

I am concerned about prohibition of domestic gas appliances. Where I live, in a 1929 built house, replacing my gas stove, water heater and gravity house heater, replacing them with electric would be problematic. 1st the cost would exceed my ability to pay for the retrofit. 2nd, my old house electric system would have to be upgraded at significant cost I cannot afford. 3rd, the electric grid is not reliable in my area and heating and cooking are at risk when the grid goes down.

I am also concerned that poor people will be the most impacted by prohibition of gas appliances in existing housing.

I am also concerned that the electric grid will not be able to support the conversion of appliances and home heating to electricity.

Please do not prohibit replacing existing gas appliances with gas appliances.

regarding banning gas stoves, I do not agree with this idea. People have been using gas stoves safely for decades. There's potential risk with any product if you look for it; we cannot eliminate every potential risk. Our Cincinnati fire department reports more fires caused by electric stoves than gas; should we eliminate electric stoves because they start more fires? Honestly, I believe this is a ridiculous idea. It would be expensive for so many people - including me - for what potential benefit? Another expensive, unnecessary ban for minimal benefit. People with asthma have the option to use an electric stove, while those of us who prefer gas can continue to use what we prefer. FREEDOM OF CHOICE.

I completely disagree with banning or harshly regulating gas stoves. As a taxpayer and consumer, I believe it will do nothing good for our country or future to ban these. As a parent of 3 children, I have only had gas stoves using natural gas for 12 years. My children have had no issues with their lungs or any other health issue. My I laws however, have only ever used electric stoves and heaters and have terrible asthma.

As a person that recently moved from an area where everything from cooking to heating was fueled by natural gas to everything being electric, I have seen a huge increase in my bills. My heating doesn't work as well, my cooking takes longer, and my clothes have to be dried twice at least. Everything we have is energy efficient, and it costs so much more than our gas products did.

Banning gas would cause a huge cost increase for everyone and would be a drain on our already overburdened power grid.

Before you consider banning new sales or otherwise restricting the use of gas stoves in the US please consider that many existing homes were not wired to accommodate the load required to power a fully electric stove. With electric demand having risen with the use of technology and other devices more pressure is being put on the electrical systems of our older homes.

Here in NY gas stoves are equipped with electronic ignition so the pilot lights for the stovetop and oven are not constantly on minimizing emissions.

It only requires a small amount of electricity to activate the electronic ignition and even most old homes can handle that.

To bring older homes into compliance would require completely re-wiring them and it's extremely expensive. There are no tax incentives that could offset the cost enough to make that affordable, especially for Senior Citizens on fixed incomes and new home-owners that bought existing homes and have no equity built up or not enough equity built up to finance such an expense considering other pressing needs like new roofs, boilers or furnaces ect.

In my humble opinion, a total ban on gas stoves could put people in a position where they might not be able to have a stove at all for cooking or even result in home loss for folks in older homes.

So I ask you to consider implementing these changes for new construction only to avoid injury to those in homes that would not be able to reasonably accomodate to and for the conditions required to meet such a mandate.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

It is a horrible idea to outlaw natural gas appliances of any kind. They have safeties in place. You also don't know what kind of hardship this could put on a homeowner. The cost of an electrician to require the house for electric appliances, could cost as much as the appliance itself.

Please, do not ban gas stoves. While I appreciate the concern and all the research your team has done, I feel this is a major overstep. More regulations, like hoods and monitors, would be much more acceptable.

Banning natural gas appliances at this point in time is a very bad idea. It will force people to use more electrical appliance putting greater demand on a power grid that is currently dominated by natural gas and coal fired power plants. Electrical appliances are generally less efficient and cost more to operate putting greater economic strain on low income families. A better approach is to regulate appliance manufacturers in a reasonable manner to ensure consumer safety and educate consumers in the safe operation of their appliances. Bans on gas appliances and natural gas hookups does little to help curtail green house gas emissions and will only make things worse until the nations power plants are converted to renewable energy sources.

I've read the studies you backed this on we're flawed and the places had inadequate ventilation and 20% had cigarette smoke. You think we are that stupid. What's gonna happen when we have rolling blackouts in CA in summer or now with the rain in winter? Get off and worry about the real polluters in industry not regular peoples gas stoves!

I am commenting on your concerns of gas stoves. This seems like this is a greener decision hidden by minor concerns around gas stoves. I am sure there are bigger issues such as EV cars catching fire. Perhaps you should end the production of EV cars. Needless to say I think this is an absurd idea to end the production of gas stoves.

I am writing to make your agency aware of a huge problem. See, I was out walking my dog on the sidewalk tonight. Cute dog, by the way. Thirteen pounds. Very lovable. Well as I was walking the dog I tripped and almost fell. I am pretty sure my shoe caught in a crack in the sidewalk, although it may have been a loose stick from the ol' oak in the front yard which was laying on the sidewalk. In any event, I thought this might be a problem right down your alley. Maybe when you are done banning all the gas stoves in the world and when you are done laying waste to that pernicious gas stove cartel, or maybe its a junta, you could look into this problem. It seems to me if you truly are out to protect us citizenfolk you really ought to consider banning cracks in sidewalks or maybe all sidewalks or, if the real problem is sticks falling out of trees onto sidewalks, it might just be better to ban all trees. I just know in my heart that I am unable to watch where I am going and make my own decisions about where I walk and just simply take responsibility for my actions and thus need the protection that only the virtuous and benevolent federal government can provide to someone like me.

Please consider this, but only after all those evil gas stoves are in landfills.

Are some of the lunatics there seriously considering banning gas stoves?

Obviously whoever came up with that idiocy has been over-dosing on illegal substances and destroyed what few brain cell's had been present. Do you really think the grid can handle the additional electrical load you are attempting to create when citizens now are told not to use their A/C or charge their coal fired cars as it is? You usually make wise suggestions, but this one is so stupid as to prove some of you there need intensive psychiatric therapy! With everything going on in the world, all you had to do was advise people to.. OH MY GOD ... turn on the overhead range hood and crack open a window to supply return air! Really... you can do better than this! Now I know some researchers graduated at the top of their class and some at the bottom of their class, yet they are all called researchers.

Obviously some of yours graduated at the bottom of their class and need to be reassigned or fired!

Dear Mr. Trumka,

It is a ferociously bad idea to withdraw gas stoves from the marketplace, and I'm irritated that a CPSC official would even put that possibility out there.

Don't you understand that if the power goes out for an extended period of time due to an emergency, people won't even be able to boil water? You have taken away their resiliency for political posture.

This proposal should be withdrawn immediately, and you should work on proposals that make people's lives better, not worse.

I am vehemently opposed to a ban on gas stoves. I know of no chefs or ardent cooks (like myself) that want to cook on an electric stove. Educate people if you want if you believe health issues exist but do not arbitrarily take gas stoves away. This government overreach at its worst.

Fire is one of those things that are responsible for civilization from the beginning. Please tell Trumpka to use his electric stove all he wants but keep out of my house. The idea that you want to eliminate gas stoves is just a weak stab at the fossil fuel business. Working class households who depend on this cheap and clean way to heat, cook and dry clothes, deserve better.

I understand your agency is considering banning gas stoves. I cannot use an electric stove. When we moved into our current home, it came with an electric stove. I tried it for a few weeks, but I burned everything and nothing came out right. We paid to have a gas line for the stove put in and bought a new one. I will never go back to electric.

Also, I grew up with electric, and yet I have asthma. The connection may not be real. If a family is concerned about any connection between asthma and gas appliances, they can certainly opt to use electric in their home. Do not impose this on everyone.

I have read reports of possibly stopping the production of new gas stoves.

What no one is talking about is the expense of rewiring the home for electric ovens. Not all codes require both gas and 220 outlets for electric ovens. My home is an example of gas and 110 outlet only. I recently replaced my stove and considered an electric dual fuel. I got estimates for running 220 outlet, over $2000 just to run outlet and I would probably have to upgrade circuit breaker box (no expansion room) which would also be costly. For most home with gas oven It's not as simple as just buying a new stove.

I cannot even fathom your groups efforts to ban the sale of gas stoves.

Who in the hell gave you the authority to even study this effort, let alone implement the effort.

Get back to your job and stop attempting to "GREEN" the world. You are attempting to change over half of the population of the U. S. without legislation nor authority.

STAY OUT OF MY KITCHEN & KEEP YOUR HANDS OFF MY PROPANE GAS STOVE!!! IF YOU WANT TO HELP CHILDREN WITH ASTHMA, GO AFTER LARGE INDUSTRIAL POLLUTERS AROUND THE WORLD THAT SPEW BILLIONS OF TONS OF AIR POLLUTION INTO THE AIR 24/7/365 DAYS A YEAR! I DO NOT EVER WANT AN ELECTRIC STOVE, I HATE THEM. STAY OUT OF MY KITCHEN AND THE KITCHENS OF ALL AMERICANS! YOU HAVE NO RIGHT TO IMPLEMENT THIS KIND OF GOVERNMENT OVERREACH!!!! INVESTIGATE THE RAILROADS AND THEIR CONTINUED USE OF CREOSOTE ON THE RAILROAD TIES THAT LEECH INTO THE GROUNDWATER AND PUT AN OILY FILM ON TOP OF SPRINGWATER THAT RUNS NEAR THE RAIL LINE, THE DUMPING OF TRAIN BATTERIES ALONG THE RAIL LINES. RAILROADS ARE THE REALLY LARGE POLLUTERS IN THE UNITED STATES, BUT THIS IS OVERLOOKED BECAUSE THE RAILROAD COMPANIES ONLY ANSWER TO THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH OF THE U.S. GOVERNMENT, I.E., THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. THERE ARE BIGGER AIR POLLUTION CONCERNS ON THE EARTH THAN GAS COOKING STOVES!!!

I saw an article about possibly banning gas stoves, while I don't really care.. I just wanted to point out that electricity still causes pollution, just in a different way, and.. all the new electric stuff that comes in droves that you guys already invested in, is actually what caused the pollution.. it fundamentally does not cause wellness, it causes third world countries and others places to be war torn and without; and even deceased.

The pollution is not in the home. You guys know this. What you do to homes is pollution. Making another product all the rave, It's like a pill. You cannot have it all. Oh, and fuck you. It's corrupt and cold and not gleeful at all. I'm fact, I have a headache. Face me, you all are corrupt and suck.

If you come to my house, which is my car.. I'll pepper spray you. Oh, here is my question. What do you do with the ones who have none left? You aren't the Hitler people, you must be the Al Capone people.. I'm Pleaidian, you don't get my vote. You are stuck in stuff. I'm comfy with just a little, how about that.. natures challenge.. can you be as quiet as a mouse for when Google chrome came out. Cameras about wiped out the southern hemisphere plus the games and stuff. Mercy wears earmuffs... glory be, everyone at the border, they came and mined again. Your lithium supports life?? Come on now...you can't be seriously considering a ban on gas ranges?

I think the government should focus on more pressing matters like the 100,000 plus fentanyl deaths this year by allowing the Mexican Drug Cartels to operate with virtual impunity on the US Border.

Wasting time and resources banning gas stoves is extremely low yield.

Dear Commissioners,

A ban on gas stoves will ignite a backlash that will end your agency regardless whoever is in the White House. The CPSC will have crossed a line that a majority of Americans will not tolerate by government intervention in their personal choices.

CPSC will not ban my gas cooking stove. The CPSC works for the people at our discretion. The CPSC does not dictate how I cook food for my family or anything else that happens in my home. All involved in this commission should resign and think about what their lives have become. It's not too late to change. Hands off of my life. Thank you.

Dear Commissioner Trumka,

I am writing to support a ban on gas stoves.

It has been scientifically proven that gas stoves cause poor health outcomes for individuals with exposure. A ban is required because people in rental situations lack the ability, due to increased competition for housing, to advocate for electric stoves instead of gas. Many rental units lack the proper ventilation as well.

Additionally, in many states, particularly Rhode Island, have seen a high increase in conversion to heating and cooking with gas due to ill-advised incentives to switch their homes to run on gas. I would like to see more done to help households convert their homes back to oil or other less toxic alternatives.

Thank you.

Dear Sir,

Should you require existing gas stoves to be replaced with electric stoves it will require a retro fit for a 220 electrical line, approx $1000 besides the stove cost. I am a small landlord with 6 units. This will force me to increase rents to cover this expense. I will clearly indicate to tenants that it is the Biden Administration and they should vote differently if they want reasonable regulations and lower rents. It is fine to implement for new builds.

I recently read an article stating the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission was considering banning gas stoves. Don't do that. That is one of the silliest things I have read so far this year about the government wanting to do something that impacts millions. Gas stoves have been in use for decades and no one has died from their use unless they forgot to turn the gas off and blew up their house after lighting a cigarette. Every time I read articles like this I remember Ronald Reagan's speech stating that government isn't the solution, government is the problem. Those words ring loudly even today. Thanks.

The ban considered on gas stoves is unnecessary and intrusive. Some people prefer to cook with gas, and that should be a consumer's decision. "Indoor air quality" can be monitored, and the use of proper venting and improvements to the appliance to create a "cleaner" burn should be considered. When the power goes out, a gas stove is a valuable way to heat food necessary for survival. Your agency needs to focus on encouraging manufacturers to produce better and safer products that consumers want, not tell the consumer what will be good for us. Thank you for what you do to keep us safe.

Before you start banning gas stoves forcing people to switch to electric, forcing people that heat with natural gas/propane to switch to electric boilers and forcing people to switch from gas powered vehicles to electric, might want to consider the impact on the power grid. I know many people that don't have gas stoves and they have asthma. You can't make up the difference with green energy, especially in northern climes. I think your research is flawed.

Do not prohibit the use of natural gas stoves and other appliances. I am 75 and we have had gas cooktops, electric cooktops and induction cooktops.

Induction cooktops are expensive and don't last that long. Electric cooktops take much, much longer to bring up to heat and are more difficult to regulate. Gas is by far the best cooktop whether it be for boiling water or cooking eggs. Note that we are not gourmet cooks.

Although I live in Delaware, I have a cabin in Vermont where we live part time. We bought a dual fuel propane stove and a propane heater years ago.

Why? The electricity goes out more often up there. We have very heavy tree cover. Trees can fall on lines near or far from us. At least we can eat and have heat when electricity fails.

Surely, many others especially in rural areas have the same problem.

Your rumored ban on gas stoves is unwise and unfair. You will be hurting more people than helping.

I am not part of any group or organization. Just an ordinary citizen trying to survive.

Re: gas stove ban. Instead of banning gas stoves, mandate outside venting overhead hood vent. I've always used gas with a venting hood, understanding burning gas emits fumes you don't want to be inhaling.

Your consideration of a ban on gas stoves is unconstitutional, racist and far overreaching by employees of the taxpayers who use gas!

It will be met with lawsuits wasting millions of dollars of tax dollars.

Congress will prohibit it.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have read in multiple media sources that the CPSC is considering the ban of gas cooking stoves due to indoor air pollution.

I consider an outright ban of gas cooking stoves to be an overreach into my personal right of home appliance.

Please inform me of any public commentary period in relation to this concern and how I may participate in discussion concerning the matter above.

Well yes you are. Banning gas stoves because you think, you do not know for sure, that only 12 percent of children have asthma because of gas stoves??? Really??? The twelve percent probably had parents who smoke with their children in the car smoking pot, crack who know what else. Do you know that over the past couple of years gas stoves helped millions of people to stay warm when they lost power literally saving their lives. Where are all of these alternative energy sources when this happens?? You guys are ignorant and need educated and quit being greedy.

So I hear that the commission is considering banning natural gas cook stoves.

Honestly, this is a ridiculous idea. You take some flimsy bit of evidence and blow it up into a big thing that is going to impact a lot of people. Maybe it's time we reconsider the value of your organization. I am personally not aware of any contribution this agency has had on the nation. Now that it is becoming a political entity and carrying out political agendas - it has outlived its usefulness

I hear you are considering a ban on electric stoves. This puts the poorest at a disadvantage when the electric goes out. I believe that electric outages will only increase in the future.

Consider in addition to a ban, adding a requirement for electricity providers, as well as electric code, to have changed rules. These rules should reflect a way when building new construction, to require that the panels are set up to have stoves, and heaters separated from the rest of the panel, and fed power when possible during brownouts. This would require legislation.

This would not help those with older panels, but you have to start somewhere.

Who do I contact regarding the committee to ban gas stoves?

This is absurd..Gas stoves pose no greater threat.

Then ban candles

Electric heaters

Christmas tree lights

This is a ploy to get the American people to have to spend more money..

Please give me a contact for a petition signing..

This is direct,but this is a further set up to try to control people in general..

Do you people not have anything else to do but grief the population?

Proposing a ban on gas stoves is a sham at best of a Green UN SDG 2030 agenda. It is not based on real merit. The "research" was funded by people with personal who wish to force their own ways on others.

It is really getting out of hand how the government desires to walk on us.

I think that gas stoves/ovens/ranges should be banned, period. They require fracking and ruin the environment. They can cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

Further, induction cooktops are much better, as they are less likely to harm a child or adult. They are less likely to burn the home down. They can be precisely set on a given temperature for cooking. I've heard that even professional cooks are starting to use induction cooktops, as well.
BAN gas stoves, gas ovens, gas everything.

If you truly want to protect consumers from "hidden" dangers, such as residential and commercial gas stoves, you would be better off concentrating on obvious dangers such as cigarette and cigar smoking. And while you're at it, automobile accidents cause a lot more danger and trauma than cooking or heating with natural gas. Besides, it's racist to ban gas stoves - you can not cook Asian and many other ethnic foods by electricity - it just doesn't get hot enough.

A recent OCR report says you're considering a ban on gas stoves. A far better alternative would be to publicize your concerns via a Public Service ad campaign, and require warning labels on new stoves. A ban by unelected government officials is far too heavy-handed given the minimal risk (millions of us have lived with gas stoves our entire lives without adverse affect).

Americans are already more distrustful of our institutions than ever, and that's a dangerous situation that seems to be deteriorating. Please don't add to the low regard currently held for government. Lots of people are going off-grid, and gas stoves reduce reliance on electricity. Banning a product used safely every day by so many is a very bad idea. That's not good governance.

Hello,

Please respond to this message, to my email, and confirm you will be answering all these questions.

I read something that you are considering various options to deal with gas stoves, because they are a "hidden health hazard". As a consumer, I'm interested in seeing what data you have to support this conclusion. How do I get to see a copy? Apparently converting gas furnaces to electric is also under consideration?

I have some questions.

1. How many gas stoves and furnaces are in use in the U.S.? In total energy usage.
2. If all that capacity was switched over to electric, can the power grid handle it? Apparently power grids are taxed during the summers especially.
3. Supposedly we want everyone driving electric vehicles. How does that figure into your capacity calculations?
4. What about rural areas where gas acts as a backup? Many people have their own tanks, and if all power was out for an extended period, they could still cook and heat on gas. That's not true of electricity. If it's out, it's out. That can cause injury or death to people, and possible damage to plumbing system if the houses can't be kept warm because of a lack of heat.
Have you considered this problem, and if a person is forced to switch to electric, will you be compensating them for losses.
5. Electricity can be 2x-4x higher than gas per BTU. How do you plan to compensate people for the additional costs they will incur by switching from gas to electricity? And who will pay for the appliances, and rewiring the property?
6. First records of gas usage are around 1000 BC, and China 500 BC.. So, it's been used for millennia. Why is it all of a sudden a major problem?
7. You are a government agency. Government is there to serve the people, because it's the people that give government the power to act, as requested by the people, for the people. How many independent citizens, no special interests, non government, have asked you to investigate the "hidden hazard" that gas poses?

NOTE: These submissions from members of the public may contain vulgar and offensive language that CPSC does not condone.

8. Where does this problem fall in terms of most serious consumer protection issues?

Looking forward to your reply,

Banning gas stoves. I can't stand the fumes, use electric only. But one option for indoor air quality would be to require a strong vent hood which switches on when the stove is lit.

The debate on gas stoves should be dropped, here is why: 1 paper cited an issue, I am sure many other scientist can prove opposite of the one paper. 1.

we have a troubling electric grid across America where states do rolling blackouts in the summers and old man weather causes power outage for days in the winter, but the gas stove continues to operate and provide an source for cooking. 3. As the price of electricity continue to rise and the demand for electricity continue to rise, the less fortunate may not be able to pay the electric bill but they can still eat with the gas stove and yes that is a real thing here in America. 4. Gas cook tops cool 4 times faster than electric. How many children are cooking on gas stoves? I imagine very few to none in the 21st century, most things are microwaved or air fried. Homes are so well ventilated that any fumes coming from a gas stove will dissipate in seconds. We as a nation should want to save lives and promote healthy living and with that we should focus on true known issues not hypothetical issues.

Alcoholism is a killer is children and adults, that is an issue that we as a nation can fix and would not disrupted the fabric of the nation just the wealth of the wealthy. regulate the alcohol content in liquor. Provide real assistance for over indulgers and alcoholics. Provide real assistance for people suffering with mental illness, Provide anger and stress management training that effective. BAN violence on TV and movies. Can you recall leave it to beaver type of shows? How was a killing and violence stats in America then. It no secret that we do what we see as people.

Hello,

Please do not pursue making gas stoves illegal. The many states in the U.S., including my home state of California, experience many power outages each year. When the power is out for a few days in a row, the water stops working and so we do not have access to clean water. While gas stoves may cause some health issues, not having access to clean water and not being able to prepare food causes more pressing concerns. We need to be able to purify water and heat food when the electricity is out.

Across the country, electric grids are already being pushed to the limit, and this issue will be compounded as more and more devices become electric.

California has banned the sale of gas-powered cars in the near future, and so our grids will be stretched even more thin.

If people want electric stoves, they can get electric stoves, but some of us NEED gas stoves. Please instead take an approach of educating the public rather than forcing a blanket ban.

Thanks,

Someone who needs clean water and food

I and my family have been around gas stove for 60 years without a problem.
Banning them is ridiculous!!! If you really want to help the health of us citizens ban big pharma drugs.

In 2015, there were nearly 444,000 deaths related to FDA-approved drugs.
During that time, prescription medications caused nearly 2.2 million adverse reactions. On the other hand, there was not one death caused by a supplement.

Not one.1

In fact, herbal remedies ARE proven. An analysis in the journal Alternative Therapies found over 1,500 studies just on the top 10 herbal supplements.2 And these herbs have also been tried and tested by traditional healers over thousands of years.

100,000 Americans Die Each Year from Prescription Drugs, While Pharma Companies Get Rich Prescription drugs taken as directed kill 100,000 Americans a year. That's one person every five minutes. How did we get here?

By Daniela Perdomo / AlterNet

June 24, 2010

How many people do you know who regularly use a prescription medication? If your social group is like most Americans', the answer is most. Sixty-five percent of the country takes a prescription drug these days. In 2005 alone, we spent $250 billion on them.

I recently caught up with Melody Petersen, author of Our Daily Meds, an in-depth look at the pharmaceutical companies that have taken the reins of our faltering health care system by cleverly hawking every kind of drug imaginable. We discussed how this powerful industry has our health in its hands.

Daniela Perdomo: Your book includes some staggering stats. For example, 100,000 Americans die each year from prescription drugs — that's 270 per day, or, as you put it, more than twice as many who are killed in car accidents each day. Could you elaborate on this? Are these people abusing their prescription drugs or is this a sign of prescription meds gone bad?

The CPSC website should add a title under the topic "What We Do". This should include a statement relating to "How We Look Incompetent" or "Were Just Stupid". I just read several articles indicating the consideration of banning natural gas stoves. Before such a ban is implemented a thorough independent study should be conducted nationwide to determine the impact upon the electrical grid. With more emphasis being placed upon electric applications ie cars, trucks, tools, etc. I am afraid that some areas will not be able to supply the necessary electricity. The news already publishes areas with tolling black outs during peak hours.

I find the proposed ban on gas stoves to be an unreasonable threat to my health; and will sue over it if need be. Not immediately, but eventually my hand will be forced.

You cannot make the power grid work with high reliability in ice storms; therefore I must possess an indoor gas stove in order to avoid a severe health hazard. The alternative is not an electric stove; while these do work most of the time; I would be forced to install both an electric stove and a gasoline stove. I'm sure you can guess the problems with the latter; they make the gas stove look nerf level harmless by comparison.

Banning gas fired appliances is a solution to a problem that does not exist.

to say that it impacts minorities disproportionately is an attempt to justify an action that most users of gas appliances would find intrusive and undesirable.

Stay out of my kitchen. A ban on gas stoves is a stupid, pathetic, overreaching attempt at government power. Stop being a pathetic organization.

The CPSC is unsafe, not gas stoves. The government does not seem to care about the trillions of tons of pollution dumped into our environment by big industry. Stop acting like you care about the people. I will be petitioning to end the CSPEC because you are causing more harm than good.

Pls do Not over regulate the use of gas stoves,etc., as natural gas is both clean and efficient and —safe! Been used for decades with no problems. And regulating them out of use by your proposed rules to help the climate is ridiculous! I've read in the wall street journal that if all carbon emissions were stopped now and for many years to come, it would affect the earths temperature by stopping a rise of only something like 0.00000006% increase in temperature! First “global warming” and now “climate change” are both not true. And gettting rid of gas stoves is just another ridiculous thing to do- and only really an attempt at more control over citizens' daily lives, which is wrong. Stop restricting our freedoms.

I am fully behind replacing gas stoves with electric conduction stoves. I would like my building owner in Hyattsville (Top of the Park - part of Southern Management) to replace my gas stove with an electric conduction stove, but the answer has always been no. I have been asking off and on for 6 years. We have no ventilation hoods in their buildings, so we need to open our sliding glass doors when we use the stoves. Thank you. (b)(6)

Last month the US Consumer Product Safety Commission said gas-powered stoves are a 'hidden health hazard.'

"Natural gas stoves, which are used in about 40% of homes in the US, emit air pollutants such as nitrogen dioxide, carbon monoxide and fine particulate matter at levels the EPA and World Health Organization have said are unsafe and linked to respiratory illness, cardiovascular problems, cancer, and other health conditions, according to reports by groups such as the Institute for Policy Integrity and the American Chemical Society." – the federal agency said last month.

You are just regurgitating information. Stay out of our lives. Stop participating in Satan's agenda.

I want to thank Mr. Trumka for his comments highlighting the potential dangers of gas stoves. As a recent cancer survivor, I have ongoing lung problems. I have tested the toxicity levels in my house where we have used a gas stove, and it set off alarms. This was a relatively new stove (five years old). We are now in the process of replacing that stove. It may be useful for you to know that the TV show "This Old House" has an instructive video on this issue from the standpoint of the efficiency of induction stoves (<https://www.thisoldhouse.com/kitchens/23529716/induction-cooking-technology>).

While some politicians and media folks are making a fuss over anything they find offensive, your comments help to inform the public on the real dangers for those of us with medical vulnerabilities. Keep up the good work!

Howdy!

I strongly urge the CPSC to drop consideration of the ban on sales of new gas stoves. The science behind the pending decision is extremely ambiguous, and gas appliances tend to be cheaper and more cost-efficient than equivalent electrical appliances. A ban on gas stoves would have a terrible effect on poorer households' budgets. I hope the CPSC reconsiders the ban.

I think it's terrible you want to do away with gas stoves. We live on a very insecure power grid. Last night we lost power while cooking dinner. Had we not had a gas stove we'd have gone hungry and the food that was cooking at the time would have gone bad. We cook primarily with cast iron. This is because we are sick of non-stick cookware peeling and flaking into our food.

Cast iron does not work well with your precious electric stoves. This is pure government over reach and nothing more.

Please abandon the idea of banning gas ranges; they work effectively and safely for millions of citizens and restaurants. Private people do not cook all day long, and restaurants have all kinds of ventilation.

Hi, There is no need to ban gas stoves. They can be made safe for houses very simply by putting in an air purifier. I have gas heat and in every room with a gas heater I have an air purifier. It eliminates the particulate matter that the gas appliance puts into the air and makes the air clean again. I learned this a long time ago. The electric company cannot handle the extra load on their system and banning gas appliances will add to an already overloaded power company causing the electricity to cost even more than it currently does. Gas heat and gas cooking are a necessity these days. I had electric heat when I first moved into my house and it was costing over $300 just to heat one room. The rest of my home was really cold. I did not finally get warm until I put in gas heat. Please do not cause more people to freeze to death by forcing electric appliances to be used. I could see you forcing the gas appliance company to put an air purifier in the appliance or provide one with a gas appliance to eliminate the hazard. That would be an acceptable alternative to getting rid of gas appliances.

Thanks for listening.

Sincerely,

Banning NG stoves, cooktops. Why not warn people that are Asthmatic that cooking with NG may be harmful to them, rather than banning a useful and efficient product. Approximately 40% of American homes use NG for cooking, not to mention millions of restaurants. Target the 12% not 88%.

Dear Sir or Ma'am

I just saw you people want to ban gas stoves.

Are you people crazy?

If the power goes out and you have sn electric stove, you cannot cook. You have no means to het or cook food to stay alive.

If the power goes out and you have a gas stove, you can still cook, you can boil water, you can survive if the SHTF.
WHAT ARE YOU THINKING????

I am writing to you about the possibility of the CPSC recalling or eliminating the use of natural gas stoves for cooking!

This is UnAmerican and the public will resist your effort to trample their Constitutional rights with your flawed and biased statistics concluding that gas ranges may cause asthma and other health issues.

I understand that the organization which produced this study is a group of environmentalist that are pushing for the elimination of natural gas and fossil fuels. Seems to me any study conducted should be unbiased!

If the CPSC attempts to rid our country of gas stoves they will face the wrath of the American public that they could never have imagined! This would destroy our economy by causing restaurants to close, undue hardship on the public that over time would need to buy electric ranges that are more costly to operate.

The CPSC does not have the authority to tell me how to cook my eggs in my home! Period! I am sick of the government overreach in this administration.

Oh and the problem could probably be solved by a good ventilation system at home or wherever.

Americans would support common sense methods to reduce our carbon imprint but you radicals won't accept any solution that is rational.

I will eat meat if I want to regardless of whether or not the meat I eat results in methane gas or not into the atmosphere.

Reference your possibly wanting to do without natural gas and propane gas stoves. This whole government wanting to control what we do, what we use, what we spend etc. etc. has gone to damn far. I'm 82 years of age and have been using gas stoves, gas heat and gas hot water heaters my whole life as well as my 76 year old wife has. We are well. Don't worry about us citizens.

You have enough worry about taking care of yourself.

As far as you publicly releasing what I'm saying here please feel free to do so, as there are millions of us out here who are getting sick of how government knows what is best for us.

I don't think that you can even consider a ban on gas stoves until you can guarantee 100% that homes will never lose power. I live in a rural setting and for years when the power went out for up to 10 days at a time, our gas stove was the only way to cook and keep warm. We've lost power so much that we have installed an emergency generator system (powered by natural gas) so when the power does go out at least we're not freezing in the dark.

The news about Richard Trumka deciding on his own to ban gas stoves was typical of Washington bureaucrats with too little to do and make life difficult for the people he is suppose to serve. I was so outraged I contacted my senator and congressman over this. We've been using gas in our homes for 60 years with no issues - none. How dumb and arrogant can one man be. Thanks to Alex Hoehn-Saric for at least some rational common sense response to such stupidity.

I read the article about banning gas stoves and the hazards of "gas stoves", and I think that Richard Trumpka Jr. is way off base. If the nitrogen dioxide pollution is a problem, then the structure in which it is used has been wrapped too air tight. Old homes "breathed" and had cement or brick chimneys, and all "bad" pollutants escaped, by nature, through the ability of the structure to "breathe". Gas, both natural and propane, are two of the four main ways us upper Midwesterners heat our homes and cook our meals. (the other two are fuel oil and wood!) When we have power outages, our stoves can be lit manually, and also our gas fireplaces, thereby providing warmth and security in a time of disaster. Since I was on my own, starting in 1965 at the age of 19, I have had gas stoves til 2020 when I had to leave the farmstead due to health problems. (no, they were not caused by "gas" appliances) I have neuropathy causing balance problems due to advancing age. And stairs were beginning to be a problem. But to blatantly state that gas stoves should be banned would be like saying all automobiles should be banned because they also cause pollution and deaths. I might point out at this time that pitchforks, hammer handles, rolling pins, frying pans, chairs, slippery bathtubs, and a whole tirade of other things also can cause harm and deaths in the human race. But to try and champion the banning of gas appliances is just as dumb as banning the aforementioned items. People get illnesses, diseases, and old age causing death. Get used to it. If we were to look at all things that are hazardous to humans, we would still be living ion caves, eating raw meat, and surviving by the "skin of our teeth"! Maybe we should go back to the 1950's, and build our houses like they did in that decade, and our input cost would be lower, our maintenance costs lower, and our living would be a lot better. This "gentleman" Richard Trumpka needs to re-look at life, and especially our history as to illnesses as we had more troubles back then based on our population to illness ratios. Besides, if we were to all have electric stoves, where would the power come from? We have the potential to "kill" our electrical grid today if all the owners of EV's were to charge their cars at one time with all the households cooking with electric stoves at the same time. Right now we haven't any wind here in Minnesota, and the solar panels are buried in snow so they are not producing electricity. So-----what would you suggest we do? Think about it Richard, think about it.

I read that your office is considering a ban on gas stoves. This seems that you are going too far with this finding. There are many of us who CHOOSE to use gas stoves over electric and it should be up to the consumer to decide if something as a 12% chance of a child getting asthma from it should be our choice. You can not prove 100% that these findings are fully true. Were you able to rule out other sources that could have led to these findings? Are you going to forbid people from moving near airports, highways and train yards because those emissions could cause asthma too? I believe that a warning that comes with a gas stove should be ample enough and then let the consumer decide if they want to take that chance.

The Consumer Protection Safety Commission has no right and no business even considering a ban on gas stoves, gas dryers, gas heaters, et al. Commissioner Richard Trumka is a moron who has apparently lost what little mental capacity he had left. I don't need a government agency telling me and my family how to cook - it's not your job!

Dear Consumer Product Safety Commission,

I have read some alarming news reports the past several days indicating that your office is considering measures to limit the use of natural gas stoves for cooking. It is my understanding that this proposed action is due to ventilation concerns, which can lead to the build up of exhaust gases and airborne particulates. If this truly is a safety concern, might we not start by requiring gas stoves to be equipped with improved ventilation fans and filters? In terms of larger buildings, might you not consider requiring changes to building codes such that all kitchen units have a window opening to the outside, or have an actual exhaust system that vents outside the building? These seem much more reasonable approaches to this issue than simply banning the use of kitchen appliances that are vastly superior to electric models for cooking. They would also spare the citizens of this country the very large expense and hassle of transitioning to a lower-quality product, to say nothing of the major economic harm this would inflict on many suppliers of natural gas. Thank you for considering my view on this issue, and I do hope this finds you all doing well.

Best Wishes,

Hi,

I recently heard that you may be considering outlawing gas stoves, and felt alarmed, so I hope you'll indulge me adding my 2 cents. Gas stoves work during power outages. That is not a small factor to consider. Also, with rent being as unbearably high as it is, adding costs to landlords (retrofitting) that they will inevitably pass on to renters could add to the housing crisis. Health matters, obviously, but some health factors (being able to eat and boil water during a storm, with storm frequency and intensity on the rise; affording housing) are more pressing than others. I'd strongly encourage you to take these factors into consideration as you make decisions to improve the overall health of the population. Thank you.

Regarding the ban of gas stoves. We experience occasional power outages and if we switch to electric stoves we won't be able to cook food or heat water to wash or bathe in case of a power outage. The nice thing about gas is that if the electrical grid is down we can still cook and get hot water. Most electrical lines are overground and vulnerable to storms. Perhaps it's best to focus on ventilation and other measures.

You are considering a ban on gas stoves claiming it is not safe for our health! That is NOT true! We used gas stoves ALL the time! Gas stoves ARE SAFER THAN ELECTRIC stoves!!! In one apartment I was in, I had to use my stove-GAS as a heater because my Landlord had no heat on. My health can not be better than it is and this was for many years. Living at home, our GAS stove was always being used as I am Italian and we make EVERYTHING homemade! Spaghetti, pizza, candy, breads, etc.

Gas stoves are safer than electric and I will not use an electric stove!
NOT ONE person in my family have any health problems because of a gas stove.
PLEASE stop knocking gas stoves down with untrue claims. PLEASE do the right thing and keep gas stoves in our homes.

Electric stoves cause fires. Where I am now, we have electric and there are always fires here! I know how to cook and am a great cook. I wish the people here knew how to cook too. We would not have all these fires.

Thank you! Stay safe and I wish you all a great, safe and happy and healthy New Year!

Sincerely, (b)(6)

There have been several articles lately about the potential danger of toxic chemicals being given off by gas stoves. I have not seen any discussion regarding natural gas vs propane as a cooking fuel. I also have not been able to find the percentage of natural gas stoves vs propane stoves in use today.

I would like to recommend that propane stoves be include in your future research.

Thanks.

It has come to my attention that there is a push to outlaw gas stoves based on a mathematical study affecting children's health. I urge you to reconsider this radical move that will effect millions of kitchens across the country. The study quoted is of limited scope and seems hypothetical in nature. Also the claim by senators Booker and Warren that it disproportionately affects black and Latino households is a reach at best. Do I need a gas does that cost more than electric to purchase. Fact is that gas is a far superior method of cooking in many households choose gas over electric for this reason. It also happens to be a superior method for heating a household over electricity. I urged the commission to simply mandate warning label on all gas products rather than a ban of the products. After all it is not illegal for a person to smoke a cigarette in their house with children at home why should it be illegal for me to have a gas stove when I don't even have children? Thank you for your time.

Re: Banning Natural Gas Stoves and Ovens

Dear CPSC -

I read in the news that you are considering banning natural gas stoves and ovens due to concerns about toxic fumes. I have used natural gas appliances for my entire life and have done a fair amount of study surrounding fuels and energy of various sorts.

Most of the electricity in the US is generated by either coal, nuclear or natural gas. A small amount is generated with hydro and a miniscule amount is generated with wind or solar. Of coal, nuclear or natural gas, both coal and nuclear generate terrible amounts of by-products and waste, some of those lasting for millennia, whereas natural gas generates carbon dioxide and water. Additionally, natural gas is a by-product of the petroleum industry. If the gas wasn't captured and used in the economy, it would literally be burned off in a large flame at the well head.

Based on all of this, I CANNOT SUPPORT your suggestion to move away from natural gas appliances, towards electric. I think that moving to all electric would put our environment in a WORSE state than would remaining on natural gas would do.

Please do not ban or move to ban natural gas appliances.

Yours most sincerely,

(b)(6)

Hi, I read that Richard Trumka Jr. is proposing a ban on indoor gas ranges. I think it is premature to make this move and also not very effective. My stove is one of 3 gas powered appliances in my apartment. The furnace and dryer are also gas-fueled. To note, most electric grids cannot handle a switch of all gas appliances to electric. I do not have enough amps at my stove's location to replace it with electric. Plus, because this is one unit on one floor, whatever fumes escape the venting for the furnace and the dryer all accumulate in the same level, not like a single family home with a basement.

MANY people and MANY landlords like me cannot afford to replace some or all of the appliances, either, without rebates or tax credits. I encourage the agency to think this through more clearly before it gets implemented. Plus, even if I replaced all the 9 gas appliances in my building, the gas lines that leak would still be out there, leaking... which is the utility company's responsibility. And electric is too expensive for heating. Thank you.

I heard in the news today that you guys are considering banning gas stoves. This wokeness disguised as safety needs to end. This cannot be allowed to proceed. Gas stoves and water heaters have operated safely in homes longer than most of you have lived. If you need to create some regulation, make it on the ventilation required to operate gas appliances. DO NOT ban them. This is a monstrous overstep in regulatory authority.

I do not agree with banning gas stoves. It is the cheaper alternative to electric stoves. You would be raising consumers' bills and lining the pockets of electric companies. This is not in my best interest.

Banning Gas Stoves: how about you find something else to worry about. Fine try to make the "safer" then they already are but banning this is draconian and over stepping. I was raised cooking on an electric stove/oven. When I moved out and got my first apartment is when I first had a gas stove and I never went back. In fact I had a gas line installed in my current house to run the stove/oven because cooking with gas is so much better. You can tell people it is the same but as someone who grew up with one and prefers the other it is not. I appreciate you are here to make sure products are not unsafe for the public but this is taking things way to far. The % of issue is so low and could be factored to so many different aspects you can't possibly make a sweeping generalization about every gas stove. It could be the manufacture, the maintenance, the location of stove, so many different variables would preclude a person from making a generalization to every gas stove that exists. As someone who also just installed a $73,000 solar system I have zero intention of changing to an electric oven anytime.

I just saw Joe Biden was backing down

Before they back down have them come to where many people are sickened by gas. Tarrytown and Sleepy hollow ny

Gas appliances were not meant to be burned indoors without ventilation to direct outdoor air. somehow code was changed except for Rochester NY(that's what a lawyer up there told me)

I had called her to represent me in my gas stove leak but thanks to statue of limitations I can't sue and that is so unfair

I wanna tell anyone who will listen

The codes need to be updated

Gas appliances were never allowed back in the 60s.and before without a fan or exhaust to outdoor air.se.idiot.decided gas was ok inside .well gas is what killed many people.

When I was little my apartment building wreaked of gas.it causes anxiety,vein problems , hypoxemia and cancer I have facts...

The ventilation in many apartment buildings the ventilation doesn't pull enough to hold a piece of toilet paper which means it ain't pulling so that code needs a fixin.

Gas stoves are a hazard

My building smells like gas

My friend who had gas smells for twenty years has 8 or so people in building got different cancers Why o had my gas leak I was having stroke and als symptoms and a regular md said I was fine.i went to Dr Adrienne Sprouse in Manhattan and she saved my life .she put me on o2 therapy for two years so please consider no gas indoors and please get after gas companies to put gas leak detector in any home, or business where they have gas.

To the Commissioner, PLEASE DO NOT BAN GAS STOVES!!!

not everyone has kids, were older adults, so why would you ban stoves for everyone. Gas is a clean fuel, if anything ban electric stoves. They use fossil fuels for the electricity they burn. What is going on, you people get in a high office and start banning cars, now you want to ban gas stoves. You ban them and the next presidential election you will be out of a job, and the ban will be over turned. Why not instead, list a warning for households with children. That says keep children away from stove when in use, crack a window. You people, have no right to ban a gas stove. What about those of us who live out away from electricity we must use gas because that is all that is available. You will leave office as the most hated CPSD Commissioner. That will be your legacy Leave our gas stoves alone.

Please do not ban gas cooking stoves. Many in our area live off the grid and all appliances use propane. I.e stove, refrigerator, hot water heater, and furnace. Since we have no conventional electricity, electric stoves and some other electric appliances are not feasible or an option.

Regarding potential health issues for children, perhaps consumer warning labels could be placed on all appliances. Perhaps stoves could require an ignitor switch instead of pilot lights.

Who was the bird brain that said we should ban gas stoves? 😏 Fire that son of a bitch as he's fucking stupid!
You want to make gas stoves safer inside the home? Have you ever heard of air venting to the outside with hoods above the stove with fans? 😏 Only the government hires people with low IQ's as this motherfucker has!!!

Leave gas stoves alone! Stick a warning label on if you feel you need to do something, but banning new gas appliances is going too far!!!! I cannot overstate this.

Dear Sir/Madam

As a consumer of natural gas in our household, please consider my opinion in favor of the continued use of cooking/heating with natural gas.

I was born and raised in a home with a propane gas cook stove. As an adult, we have lived 32 years with a natural gas stove and hot water heater. We converted to a natural gas furnace during 2020 due to circumstances. My father and grandfather here had propane stoves, my great grandfather used coal, then switched to propane. My great grandpa died of old age at 97 in 1898. I am currently 57. I sincerely believe gas stove use is not a huge health risk.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Dear CPSC,

I'm a middle school student who is losing hope after decades of inaction.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Sincerely,

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Sincerely,

Dear CPSC,

I'm a father who fears for my family in a warming world.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Dear CPSC,

I'm a small business owner who is angry about the lack of action on climate.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Dear CPSC,

I'm a grandmother who is angry about the lack of action on climate.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Dear CPSC,

I'm an aunt who fears for my family in a warming world.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

Commissioner Trumka's recent public statements have awakened the public to the long-known dangers of air pollution from gas stoves. But while some have labeled his comments extreme, I want you to know that you have my full support in cracking down on gas stove pollution. I believe the Commissioner is absolutely right that products that pose known health hazards must either be made safe or banned.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Dear CPSC,

I'm a grandfather who wants real action to make our energy and related activities sustainable for the benefit and safety of our people and the natural environment we depend on.

I'm writing to thank you for your recent public advocacy about the health hazards of gas stoves, and to encourage you to pursue bold regulatory action.

We know gas stoves can be significant household sources of carcinogenic benzene, asthma hazard nitrogen dioxide, and powerful greenhouse gas methane. I fully support Commissioner Turnka and the Agency requiring stoves safer and banning those that aren't.

Thank you again for your role in bringing national attention to the perils of gas stoves, and please act boldly to protect American consumers!

Hello please do not make a federal government mandate ban on gas stoves. If harmful for certain people, then they can use electric. I've had one for 30 years without issue. This seems like total government overreach and following an agenda on climate change at the root of this disguised as safety.

We lost electricity last year and thank goodness for gas stove!! You have to have options. Thank you for listening.

Dear U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission,

Thank you for taking an important step to protect the public from dangerous organohalogen flame retardants. Please move forward quickly with the rulemaking process and finalize the ban on the sale of household products containing these flame retardant chemicals.

As a consumer, it is very difficult to avoid these hazardous chemicals in my home. That is why I rely on the Commission to help protect me and my family.

Numerous eminent scientists have documented the harms posed by using organohalogen flame retardants in consumer products. It is also well-documented that these chemicals leach out of products and end up in our bodies.

It is alarming that 97 percent of U.S. residents have measurable quantities of toxic organohalogen flame retardants in their blood because all studied organohalogens have been associated with serious adverse human health effects. Children are especially at-risk because they come into greater contact with household dust than adults, and studies show that children, whose developing brains and reproductive organs are most vulnerable, have three to five times higher blood levels of these chemicals than their parents.

Thank you for your commitment to protecting the public and finalizing a ban on products with organohalogens.

Please help protect my children and their future.

Sincerely,

I saw today that the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission is initiating a study of the health consequences and dangers of gas stoves (led by Commissioner Richard Trumka, Jr.). I'm a Stanford professor who has led work on methane emissions and indoor air pollution associated with gas stoves (for instance: <https://doi.org/10.1021/acs.est.1c04707>). My group has new BTEX data that would be relevant for the commission's new effort and would welcome the chance to discuss results with them. Sincerely, (b)(6)

I read in the news this morning you're looking at banning our gas stoves. Before you ban my stove for better air quality, why not make them better? Why not educate folks to always turn their fan on and open a window? What about banning cars that run on gas for less asthmatic children? Or wood burning stoves - those are crazy in our mountain community. Or corporate cattle and pig farms - talk about pollution! Do not ban my gas stove - seriously.

I am writing to you about your recent comments regarding gas stoves. Personally, I think you're trying to infringe upon citizen's choices to live how they choose. If I want to purchase and own a gas powered stove, that's my business. A regulatory commission shouldnt be making decisions like these for me. It's kind of ridiculous. I also think that the government should keep their nose out of my decision of whether I want to buy a gasoline powered car or an electric powered car. Any educated person knows that the whole climate change agenda is a sham. It is definitely not backed up by science. If you want to see good examples of how "Going green" doesn't work, look no further than the state of California. The solar panels and windmills don't generate enough electricity to maintain the power grid. This results in rolling blackouts which is no way to live your life. I'm sure that you could find other ways of your agency justifying its existence by looking into other areas of consumer products.

Do NOT ban gas stoves. If you feel they can be made better, set standards. Do not make my choice for me. Ridiculous and completely inappropriate to make such an all inclusive decision without taking consumer needs into consideration.

COMMENTS

1. He believes that gas stoves should be regulated, so that they are safe and do not leaking dangerous levels of chemicals in the homes.
2. Gas stoves should not be banned. Maybe there needs to be an accessible valve, which can be opened and shut, when the stove is no in use.
3. He has a gas stove in his home and there is no way to turn off the gas to the stove, without also turning off the gas to his furnace. If regulatory changes were made to the stove, it is understandable that the changes could impact other items in the home, which operate on gas as well. The agency should take this into consideration.

Concerning banning gas stoves in the home. My advice is to ban the sale of new stoves rather than make people get rid of existing stoves. News outlets are implying that homes will have to get rid of gas stoves by a certain date.

I don't know the specifics, but if that's the case your making a big mistake. Just ban the sale of new gas stoves and let time do its job.
